For the first time, the world has seen a new kind of war.

The war is not between nations, but between man and machine.

The war is not fought with swords and spears, but with guns and bombs.

The war is not fought with armies and navies, but with air forces and submarines.

The war is not fought with horses and chariots, but with tanks and airplanes.

The war is not fought with bows and arrows, but with rifles and machine guns.

The war is not fought with spears and shields, but with bayonets and grenades.

The war is not fought with swords and shields, but with machine guns and tanks.

The war is not fought with bows and arrows, but with rifles and machine guns.
